Business of Regenerative Medicine Asia Pacific Webinar

The Impact of COVID19 & what can we do for the sector NOW!

14th May Thurs 12noon to 1.30pm (AEST)

The effects of COVID19 has been far reaching with negative impacts being felt globally. While most industries have suffered greatly, the medical industry is operating at two speeds. Quests for vaccines and treatments for COVID19 are being fast tracked to clinical trials while other innovations have slowed or put on hold.

This webinar focuses on insights into how the regenerative medicine sector is coping with the unprecedented impacts of the pandemic and what can be done now to prepare for a fast start in order to make up for lost time.

We have gathered thought leaders in this field from around the world to share their experiences and insights.

Speakers:

Dr Michael May, President and CEO, CCRM, Toronto, Canada

Prof John Rasko, Head of Department, Cell & Molecular Therapies, Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, Sydney, Australia
